1. A request to modify the glyph for U+2E23A/KC-06640

- KR requests that the glyph for U+2E23A/KC-06640 be changed as follows:

- In the above figure, the current glyph in UCS is shown on the left and the new one is shown on the right. The right upper portion of the glyph is modified.

2. IRG Recommendation IRG M63.11

- This issue was discussed during IRG #63 in Oct. 2024 based on YI Bai's document IRG N2723 (2024-09-23, Issues about one unification case in Working Set 2021).

At that meeting, the glyph for TE-2725 in the ExtJ and U+2E23A/KC-06640 were reviewed.

As described in document IRG N2723, and with a response from TCA in document IRG N2724, ROK agrees to update the representative glyph for U+2E23A in the Extension F block according to Rule 130-1 in ROK Normalization Rules Version 1.6 (document IRG N2573). This K-source ideograph, with this representative glyph change, and the T-source ideograph TE-2725 in the Extension J block (U+32E11 in the draft code chart) are unifiable.

Action Items:

- 2024-11-01: ROK submits document IRG N2745 that includes an updated K-source representative glyph for U+2E23A

3. A request to modify the glyph for U+2E23A/KC-06640

- After the discussion at IRG #63, KR decided to normalize the glyph for U+2E23A/KC-06640 as shown above according to the KR Normalization Rule 130-1 shown below (for details, see IRG N2573, KRNormalizationRulesV1_6.pdf)

130 (虎)	130-1	𪛑	罇-罇 [B074:167d:6(乙)] 虐-虐 [B086:192b:1(未詳)] 虞-虞 [B094:510d:6(丙)]	* refer to the UCV_N311 20190417 evidence replaced 20190515 evidence added

- In the future, Taiwan could probably consider making a horizontal extension for TE-2725 at U+2E23A.

4. A .ttf font file containing the new glyph is attached

- font name="U2E23A_KC-06640"
- file name = k2251_626_glyph_CHG_U+2E23A_KC-06640_20241023.ttf
- the UCS cp for the new glyph = U+2E23A
